Question: "How are investments in high-risk assets regulated?"

Answers:

Answer 1:

Investments in high-risk assets are regulated through a comprehensive framework that includes the definition of investment principles and objectives, the description of the investment universe, investment techniques and their application, the investment process and monitoring, and staff requirements. The investment strategy must be approved by the Board of Directors, and the investment regulations are issued by the Executive Board or a member of the Executive Board or the general representative. The administration and control of the investment activity must be carried out by independent persons with adequate qualifications and knowledge of the asset classes invested in. The systems used should be appropriate to the size and complexity of the investment portfolio, and the staff must have specialist knowledge and experience. The insurance company regulates at least the internal investment principles and objectives, the description of the investment universe, the investment process, monitoring and controls, and staff requirements. The investment activity is comprehensively described in a document, and specific references to other internal directives are possible. The insurance company regulates at least the following
